

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A laundry caddy including a box having a bottom wall with a front wall and a pair of opposed side walls and being secured to, and extending upwardly therefrom. The box also includes a top wall that is hingedly secured to one of the opposed side walls and a back wall and that is hingedly secured to one of the opposed side walls. The top wall and the back wall are each capable of moving between a closed condition wherein access to the interior of the box is not easily obtained and an open condition wherein access to the interior of the box is easily obtained.

A pair of wheels is secured to the bottom wall of the box. A handle is secured to the box and extends upwardly therefrom. A pair of latches is secured to the box for selectively retaining the top wall and the back wall in a closed condition.